

Qroo Paul's Spanish Master Course

Lesson 16 Summary

Skool.com/qroo

In this lesson, we tackle a common challenge for English speakers: understanding how the verb gustar works in Spanish. Unlike English, where the subject likes something, in Spanish the thing being liked is actually the subject of the sentence.

For example:

- Me gusta el café literally means "The coffee is pleasing to me."
- The coffee (el café) is the subject, and me is the indirect object: "to me."

Key Concept: Indirect Object Pronouns

You'll need to learn these to use gustar correctly:

- me (to me)
- te (to you)
- le (to him/her/you formal)
- nos (to us)
- os (you informal, vosotros – Spain only)
- les (to them/you all)

Note: Although sometimes redundant, Spanish includes both the object pronoun and the optional clarifier like a Juan or a María. For example:

- A Juan le gusta el pan.
- A María le gustan las fresas.

Verb Forms:

- Use gusta for singular nouns and verbs in the infinitive.
Example: Me gusta bailar.
- Use gustan for plural nouns.
Example: Me gustan los libros.

Definite Articles Required:

When using gustar with nouns, always include the definite article (el, la, los, las):

- Me gusta el pan.
- Nos gustan las películas.

Making Questions:

You can make a question by simply changing your intonation:

- ¿Te gusta el chocolate?
- ¿Les gustan los animales?

Short Answers:

- ¿Te gusta el pan? → Sí, me gusta.
- ¿Le gusta el chocolate a Juan? → Sí, le gusta.
- ¿Le gustan las fresas a María? → Sí, le gustan.

When Talking About Activities:

Even if you mention more than one activity, always use gusta:

- Me gusta correr, nadar y esquiar.
(Infinitives are always treated as singular.)

Practice Section:

The lesson ends with a guided practice session where you translate sentences like:

- I like music.
- Do you like to dance?
- Does Juan like chocolate?
- We like animals.

Closing:

You're encouraged to master this pattern now, since it will be reused with other verbs that work like gustar in future lessons. Additional practice exercises are available inside the Qroo Spanish Crew classroom.
